Enthusiastic Mass Meeting at the Skating

The call for a meeting made by a secret committee, advertising themselves as a Committee of Safety, was the cause of the gathering together at the Beretania street Skating Rink on yesterday afternoon, of nearly all the male white foreign element in the city, numbering about one thousand, a sprinkling of Portuguese and half-castes swelling that number slightly. At 2:20 o'clock the assembled crowd was informed by Hon.
W. C. Wilder, Representative from the First District of Honolulu, of the business proposed to be presented in the following words:
Mr. WILDER said: Fellow citizens,
I have been recovered to said.

Mr. Wilder said: Fellow citizens, I have been requested to act as Chairman of the meeting. Were it a common occurrence, I should consider it an honor, but to-day we are not here to do honor to anybody. I accept the chairmanship of this meeting as a duty. [Applause]. We meet here to-day as men—not as any party faction or creed but as men party, faction or creed, but as men who are bound to see good government. It is well known to you all what took place at the Palace last Saturday. I need not tell you the object of this meeting, and no such meeting has been held since 1887. There is the same reason now as then. An impromptu meeting of citizens was called Saturday to take measures for the public safety. The report of the committee will be read to you. We do not meet as revolutionists, but as peaceful citizens who have the right to meet and state their grievances. [Applause]. We will maintain our rights and have the courge to maintain them.

Hon. L. A. Thurston, of the House of Nobles, read the report drawn up by the Committee of Thirteen (unsigned) and a series of preambles and a resolution, also drawn up by this modest Committee, the resolution being as follows:

"Now, therefore, We, the citizens of Honolulu of all nationalities and regardless of political party affilia-tions, do hereby condemn and de-nounce the action of the Queen and her supporters; And we do hereby ratify the appointment and endorse the action taken and report made by the said Committee of Safety; and we do hereby further empower such committee to further consider the situation and further devise such ways

We are divided into parties and nationalities and factions, in which we strongly oppose and work against each other but there are moments when an united feeling arises, there are no longer factions or cliques, each man looks at his neighbor, then we are united and move shoulder to shoulder, moved by one common desire for the public good. Three times during the past twelve years this has happened-in 1880, on the Moreno event, then again in 1387, and this third time to-day. They say it is ended, it is done, there is nothing to consider. Gentlemen, they are endeavoring to Major J. H. Wodehouse, British Minister; Mons. Mr. Young made at the commence ment a most temperate and sensible ment a most temperate and sensible opening to his remarks advising that veil of charity be thrown over the commission of the objected act on the ground that the Sovereign was a woman, and as such we should be more merciful, especially as he believed that the act complained of was the result of the machinations of other brains than of Her Majesty. In trying to promulgate this long. In trying to promulgate this long-promised constitution the Queen has, however, premeditatedly com-mitted a breach of faith with one portion of her subjects, in order to satisfy the clamors of a faction of natives urged by the influence of a matives urged by the influence of a mischievous element of foreigners who mean no good to the Queen or the people, but simply for the purpose of providing avenues for carrying out more perfectly the smuggling of opium and diverting the contents of the treasury into their own pockets. Mr. C. Bolte, was the next speaker, and he, after reviewing the events leading up to the objectionable act, said: An attempt to change the fundamental law of the land is a very serious matter, a matter that requires a good deal of considera-tion, and I am well convinced that this matter has been weighed and considered for more than a day by the Queen, and that there was no acting on the spur of the moment under the stress of her native sub-jects about it. Many people knew this several days ago, but there have been so many rumors about all sorts of things, that not very much atten-tion was paid to it; it was expected that she might change her mind before that day would come. It seems to me that the question that your committee has to ask now, and which is for you gentlemen here in the meeting to decide is this: Are you satisfied with the assurance given in to-day's proclamation signed by the Queen and the four Ministers, and will you consider this matter ended, or do you desire greater and stronger guarantees for the safety and preservation of your life and liberty and property. I am one of the Citizens Committee of Public Safety; my views on the situation are expressed in the resolutions which have just been read, and I trust that you will show that you are of the same mind as the committee by adopting these resolutions. Mr. Theo. C. Porter was called on but did not respond.

Mr. J. EMMELUTH being called on stated that he was not accustomed to speaking in public but would endeavor to say a few words on the subject matter of the resolutions. He had heard of the proposed act and had been present at the Palace grounds in the afternoon when she had announced from the balcony her change of action to the men who had requested it. He had noticed then her face and the ex-pression thereon was the "most fiendish and vindictive" that he had ever seen on the face of a woman. And he saw the 30 men who had presented the petition; old, their faces void of intelligence and their scheme: it was men who could think, or a woman, these were but tools. wanted a new Constitution. These having the power to paralyze business interests of the city for 24 hours. This was the third time that he had closed his doors and let his men go home, in the last twelve years, and God and this audience being willing this would be the last.

If we let this time pass then we deserve all that we get in the future.

As far as the Hawaiians were concerned he hoped to live in peace with them. Hon. H. P. Baldwin, a gentleman representing large vested interests in the country, spoke in a different tone from the previous speakers, he advising Constitutional methods to right any wrongs complained of. He said that he felt with the rest of those present that the actions of the Queen in the past few days had put Hasn't she once before promised—sworn solemnly before the Chief Justice, before Almighty God to maintain this Constitution?
